Winter can be long and gray so take advantage of the next sunny day and grab your camera, your snow boots, and your creative eye and head out for a walk. But not just any walk--you are going on a quest to find shadows. Shadows take on a magical feel this time of year as they are cast on or near sparkling white snow. On your walk look for different types of shadows--it's amazing the variety of patterns and designs you'll discover along the way. Take pictures of shadows that you really like. When you get home sketch out a map of the walk you took (think kid's sketching) identifying landmarks. Next, print and attach your pictures. Enjoy your winter walk, who knows what awaits you?
